

Ugandans to the rescue

August 13, 2010

Posted by Musa

Does the Somalian war serve Uganda's interests ?

Does Uganda really benefit in sending troops to Somalia? Is this in the interest of Ugandans or Uganda security? Why has Museveni been so keen to keeping Ugandans troops in Somalia and now vowing to send thousands more there? The answer might surprise you, GREED. It's widely known that in the effort to keep Al Qaeda out of Somalia, the United States government paying millions of dollars to countries that help in maintaining security in that part of the world.

This is where Museveni comes in, he doesn't need parliamentary approval nor does he need his defense minister's consent to send our troops into harms way, in fact he cares less about what the parents of those brave young men and women say! To Museveni it's only about the $$$$.

My question is, how much of those millions that the dictator collects every month, go to these soldiers or to their families especially those whose lives have been lost?

http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/programmes/world_news_today/8859947.stm

The African Union has pledged to send a further 2,000 soldiers to Somalia, and to introduce tougher rules of engagement, in the fight against Islamist militants.

The decision was taken at an AU summit in Uganda. The Ugandan President, Yoweri Museveni, says the continent needs to work in concert to sweep out terrorists.

The change in engagement rules comes after the Somali based group, Al-Shabab, claimed responsibility for attacks in Uganda which left more than 80 dead.

Zeinab Badawi spoke to President Museveni about Uganda's toughening stance.