

Ugandans to the rescue

Friday, August 13, 2010

Posted by Musa.

In today's Uganda you can not say anything that contradicts with Museveni's version and get away with it. This reporter found that out the hardest way according to our inside sources.

Police summon Uganda Record over bombing reports

The High Court buildings in Kampala. Will there be justice?

The Uganda Police yesterday summoned the editor of the Uganda Record to the CID over the news reports the paper has been publishing on the July 11, 2010 bomb blasts in Kampala.

The editor of the Uganda Record, Timothy Kalyegira, is expected at the CID headquarters at Kibuli in Kampala today, Friday July 30, to record a statement. He was phoned by Simon Kaweesa, the officer in charge of monitoring media crimes in the Uganda Police force.

Since the bomb blasts, the Uganda Record has consistently questioned the common belief that the attacks were by the Somali militants, the Al-Shabab and has strongly suggested that these were masterminded from within the Ugandan state. At the CID offices, the Uganda Record expects to explain why it took the position it did.

The latest information is that the U.S FBI has failed to find a link between the Kampala bombings and Al-Shabab.

It will also challenge the Uganda Police to investigate various mysterious bomb and grenade attacks in Kampala dating back to 1998, as well as other mysterious and high profile murders and disappearances over the last 30 years.

Ugandans to the rescue

Friday, August 13, 2010

Many of these mysterious crimes, the Uganda Record will argue, are directly traceable to President Yoweri Museveni as a guerrilla leader and as a head of state.