

Ugandans to the rescue

Tuesday, January 19, 2010

By Tom Tom

You live by the sword and you die by the sword:

It seems General Kazini believed in his mind, he was above logic of this saying. Whatever he did to the people of Northern Uganda, the people of Eastern Uganda namely Kasese and the people of Congo all came back to haunt him that fateful Tuesday 2009. In serving his Master dictator Yoweri Museveni's wills without any regard to the law, Kazini compromised his integrity as a man, his skills as a decorated soldier and certainly judgment as a sane human being.

Brig. Noble Mayombo

Mayombo's assassination should have been a warning alarm to Gen. Kazini since according to our very reliable source, Kazini knew why and how Mayombo died. To him as a Major General he did not take the assassination of a comrade seriously enough to take precautionary steps to deter the inevitable, after all he and Mayombo weren't the best of friends, in fact Kazini boasted after the death of Brig. Mayombo that "the chickens have come back to roost" not knowing that the same was coming to him. It is also important know that many military heroes who survived the bush war have been dying one by one only to leave evidence pointing to Museveni and his gang of four military Generals plus 3 civilian accomplices, as the perpetrators of these senseless crimes. The evidence implicating these thugs is there and we hope to one day bring it to light in their life time.

Ms.Druru

It is inconceivable for anybody with even a half a brain of a mosquito to even suspect that Druru who is like 5ft weighing appx 120lbs (63Kgs) could single handedly successfully pull off a murder like this on a man of Kazini's caliber! Although Druru the suspect, confessed to the murder we here at Ugandans to the rescue, were concerned at the possibility of a false confession and asked a forensic expert at one of the Universities here to analyze the only three crime scene pictures that Museveni allowed the world to see, even though we now know that there are several incriminating crime scene photos that were deliberately omitted from the public at the orders of strong man Museveni. A UTR reporter is working on getting copies of those classified pictures although Museveni thinks he is the only one in possession them.

Shocking.

The forensic expert noted the following: (1) This was not the work of one individual be it man or woman. (2) The blood sputter on the wall was inconsistent with the position of the body in Fig 3, noting specifically the lack of a single blood spot on the victims attire from the chest and back area all way down the pants and shoes, the sleeve near the wrist yet he is lying in a pool of blood! (3) Our expert further notice in that same picture the victim's hand is kind of twisted and still lying in the pool of blood, but wondered why the palm was so clean! To him that suggested the victim was restrained during the attack. (4) Another expert wondered how the victim's clothes in Fig2 were so clean with no reasonable amount of blood on them, yet he lay down in an ocean of blood..the expert also noted that the blood sputter had concentrated in only one area of the house which is very rare in furiously bleeding victims, the expert said that bleeding victims of especially violence, tend to run or get hysterical or grab on whatever they can and when they down during this process they smear blood on whatever contact is around them, in this case the expert believes that neither picture indicates the occurrence of that sequential analogy, therefore she agrees with her counterpart that the victim might have been restrained before his death. The wound in Fig1 is neither consistent with an iron bar as alleged nor consistent with the wood shown in fig3

Ugandans to the rescue

Be on alert

All of you who have committed horrendous crimes against humanity to please dictator Museveni are hereby warned that the time of reckoning is around the corner. None of you will be spared the long arm of justice when that promised time comes. We know most of you who have tortured and killed, like those who early this year massacred those innocent boys at Kyengera, not only we know your names but your pictures too are on file. The Mambas might hide themselves behind the mask but some of you we know and can identify out of a line up. There will be no such defense as I was following orders.

Remember.

The only reason why we brought the Kazini and mayombo story is not because we believe they are innocent or saints, no, no it's because we care and want to show those of you who are still committing these crimes for Museveni and the gang that however much you may serve them, however loyal you might be to them, you can never be safe from their wrath. People like Jet, Sulaiman Kiggundu, Serwanga and many others all served them with open hearts but in the end suffered mysterious and suspicious deaths.....

Ugandans to the rescue

Fig 1

No blood on the back of the jacket, notice that? The wound too is too clean

Fig 2

Everything in the room and clothes is blood free except one area

Ugandans to the rescue

Fig 3

Was that glass staged to make look like he was drunk?

Fig 4

You really believe she just killed a military General?

It seems Kazini didn't realise all along that he was actually being prosecuted for plotting to topple President Museveni. He had been accused of disobeying lawful orders and unauthorized movement of large numbers of troops when he was army commander.

Ugandans to the rescue

The general and his lawyers had not realised that the alleged offence had been linked to a plot to overthrow the government. He faced life imprisonment

Through his lawyers; Abaine - Buregyeya & Co. Advocates, Kakuru & Co. Advocates, and Rwaganika & Co. Advocates, Kazini asked the Constitutional Court to rule that the General Court Martial under the Deputy Chief of Defense Forces, Ivan Koreta, had not been properly constituted (But all this judicial maneuvering by the kazins was fruitless, he Kazin had fought and killed for and defended a military regime for over 23 years that never in its lifetime had ever respected the rule of law! What did he expect to would come out of the pleading and all the legal wrangling?)

Kazini argued that during the trial, Koreta had refused to show him evidence and exhibits that prosecution relied upon to pin him. The exhibits included the 2003 report of the UPDF High Command probe committee on “ghost” soldiers that was compiled by Amama Mbabazi, Gen. Salim Saleh and Gen. David Tinnyefuza.

What you sew is what you reap: This saying is true Kazin shouldn't have expected in the time of his trials to be exonerated by the judicial courts in Uganda, when he too was part of the team that used to eliminated some of his military and civilian colleagues, ignoring the rule of law and denied justice to all who needed it the most

Last month, the Constitutional Court threw out Kazini's petition, leaving him with no option but to petition the Supreme Court. He has died before receiving a judgment that would have either spared or ended his life. What Maj. Gen. Kazini forgot was that Museveni in Uganda is the (1) Judge. (2) Prosecutor. (3) Investigator. (4) Witness. (5) Jury and lastly but not least the Sherriff.

What our sources tell us was the ultimate trigger of Kazini's death.

Maj. Gen. James Kazini exhibited blind loyalty to the commander-in-chief since he joined the NRA in 1984. He became the escort commander of Gen. Salim Saleh soon after entering the bush. Saleh helped Kazini rise through army ranks to become army commander.

Because of his abrasive style, Kazini virtually conflicted with every senior commander in the Army, but the President always kept faith in him. The first time that Museveni appeared to lose faith in Kazini is when it was alleged that the General had created a semi-autonomous unit in the Army, the 409 brigade based in West Nile, that reported directly to him.

Ugandans to the rescue

The late Brig. Noble Mayombo confirmed this while testifying to the committee that probed “ghost” soldiers in the Army. He said: “Yes, 409 Brigade was reporting to Maj. Gen. Kazini” when he was army commander.

A brigade has three battalions, each with about 700 soldiers. That means that General Kazini had a “personal” force of about 2,100 soldiers.

The Mbabazi, Saleh, Tinyefuza committee wrote in its 85-page report that they didn’t know what Kazini’s motive was in creating that unit. They recommended further investigations

7,000 recruits

Museveni also learnt that Kazini was training 7,000 recruits at Bihanga Training School near Ibanda and Kamwenge, who were not known to the establishment. The school was headed by James Sebaggala whom Kazini didn’t have confidence in and thus got Museveni to transfer him. Let’s stop for a moment; If the 7000 recruits were unknown to Museveni, how many did he know were there and again why did he transfer James Sebaggala at Kazini’s request if the entire establishment was a mystery to him?

Kazini then picked one of his closest friends, the late Col. Sula Ssemakula, to take charge of Bihanga. (As we all know Col. Sula Ssemakula was a Muganda and that explains his quick death in this ordeal) The military school has capacity to train a maximum of about 3,000 people at a time, but Kazini stuffed it with 7,000 recruits.

Asked by the probe committee why he had crammed recruits in a small training school, Kazini’s response was that the same number had been trained there before and he needed more troops to urgently deploy in Ituri, DR Congo.

Despite his explanation, the committee concluded that “Bihanga training school was unsuitable to train 7,000 recruits because of unsuitable terrain, lack of infrastructure, insufficient training staff and inadequate medical and other facilities.” Maybe so but what about Luzira prison which now has 48,000 inmates surpassing its maximum capacity of only 9,000? With broken down toilets, no running water, prisoners sleeping on cold cement floor, not enough food to feed inmates whereby some have died due to malnutrition, prisoners die of simple and curable diseases such as Malaria yet not even a single aspirin tablet is given to any! It's a survival for the fittest prison today. Don't you think the Sherriff in charge of prisons should also be charged with at least manslaughter?

Ugandans to the rescue

The deployment of Col. Ssemakula to head the training school raised even more suspicion. The Chief of Training, then Col. Geoffrey Muheesi, was not aware or involved in the recruitment or even training.

Instead, it is another Kazini friend, Col. Poteli Kivuna, then commanding officer of 2nd Division in Mbarara, who took charge of the training school. All the supplies were channeled through Kivuna and not Muheesi. With Col. Ssemakula in charge of a 7,000-strong force of recruits, Col. Kivuna in charge of an estimated 7,000 soldiers that made up 2nd Division , and the autonomous 409 brigade that was reportedly reporting directly to him, there was panic that Kazini wanted to topple Museveni.

Quick action had to be taken. Aronda Nyakairima was appointed Army Commander in 2003, succeeding Kazini. The probe committee had also asked Kazini why he influenced the rapid promotion of Lt. Col. Segamwenge, Lt. Col. Muhindo Dura, Lt. Col. L'Okech and Maj. Nuwe Kyepaka. But Kazini asked the probe committee why it had not included Maj. Gen. Mugisha Muntu who jumped the rank of brigadier on his way to becoming Major General and Army Commander. He also cited Lt. Gen. Jeje Odongo. By the way we are researching about Maj. Gen. Mugisha Muntu, we have some conflicting reports about status in the NRM

- 2000- Recalled from Congo after clashes between the armies of Rwanda and Uganda in Kisangani (1999 and 2000)
- November 2001- UN report accuses Kazini among other officers of gaining personal wealth from DR Congo November 4, 2001-Appointed Army Commander
- June 6, 2003-Fired as Army Commander

Ugandans to the rescue

- December 1, 2003-Committed to General Court Martial for trial
- 2003- Sent to war college in Abuja, Nigeria
- 2005 -Graduates with a Master's of Science in Military Strategies from War College in Abuja
- March 27, 2008 -Sentenced to three years in jail for causing financial loss of Shs 61 million. Later released on bail.
- April 15 -Blocks Court Martial judgment